

MILITIA DRILLS IN BAKING SUN; SHOWS UP WELL

General Harries Pleased
With Behavior of District Soldiers.

CAMP ORDWAY, Bolivar Heights, W. Va., July 13.—Although not a breath of air has been stirring on the heights today, the militiamen put in the hardest day since camp begun. While the First Regiment remained on the unshaded field, the Second Regiment, which is a little further advanced in field maneuvers, took a practice "hike" to Halltown two miles from here.

Colonel Urell and Major Brett gave the militiamen a great deal of extended order work, deployed them as skirmishers, marched them in close order, and drilled them in the art of scouting. The members of the second were pretty well worn out by their first "hike," but they will not be called upon for any other duty until dress parade this afternoon.

Practice for Two Hours.
Colonel Ourand, commanding the First Regiment, did not depart much from close order formations when the regiment was turned over to him for an hour's drill. For two hours the soldiers practiced extended order movements in company and battalion formation and showed marked improvement over other days. Major Brett, who regretted the rain yesterday, because it prevented drills, kept at his work this morning and made up for all time lost because of the downpour.

Major Brett put the field and staff officers through a stiff mounted drill in the hot sun for forty-five minutes this morning. The officers and their horses have profited much since these drills were inaugurated by Major Brett, who is conceded to be the busiest officer in camp.

Officers will assemble at the headquarters of their regiments this afternoon for discussion as to their future duties. This evening they will attend Major Hickman's lecture. Chaplain Dudley, of the Second Regiment, more familiarly known as "Holy Joe," will deliver a sermon in the Y. M. C. A. tent this evening. Music and hymns will add interest to the services which were arranged by Secretary Arthur Smith of the army branch of the Y. M. C. A.

Visitors Expected Today.
Many visitors are expected here from Washington this afternoon. An excursion train will arrive shortly after noon, and the soldiers have made great preparations to welcome their friends and relatives. The first dress parade of the brigade will be witnessed here this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. General Harries will then make his first appearance on the field and give his first orders.

In addition to the First and Second regiments and First Battalion of Infantry, there will be in line the three troops of the Thirteenth Cavalry which drilled and paraded yesterday, the Third Battery of United States artillery, and First Battery District of Columbia artillery, the Signal and ambulance corps. Almost 2,000 men will participate in the parade, which is expected to outshine anything else as yet seen here.

D. C. Artillery
Arrives at Camp
Weary and Sore

CAMP ORDWAY, BOLIVAR HEIGHTS, W. Va., July 13.—Travel worn, dusty, hot, and grouchy, the First Battery, District Field Artillery, entered camp late yesterday afternoon. The soldiers, commanded by Capt. Charles Fox, had been on the road since early Sunday morning and were unburned and muscle weary from their experience. The weather was responsible for their outward discomfort, but the Third Battery Field Artillery, led by Captain Cassel, was the cause of the volunteer artillerymen's mood.

"Last night we were less than nine miles from Harpers Ferry," said one of the sergeants in the battery. "The Third Battery led us nine or ten miles out of our path and we had to follow, thus making our march today nineteen miles instead of nine. We were all tired and worn out by the heat Tuesday and would have liked to have made camp Wednesday instead of limping into camp at nightfall when we could get nothing to eat for several hours, and had to make our beds after mess."

Captains Cassel and Fox paid their respects to General Harries immediately after their arrival. Both were complimented by the commanding general on the success and speed of the trip over the rough Maryland and West Virginia roads.

The coroner's jury which held an inquest over the body of Trooper Leslie Road, of the Thirteenth Cavalry, yesterday, stated in their verdict that they were unable to ascertain the cause of his death in the Potomac river early yesterday morning.

The body of the trooper has been prepared for burial by an undertaker in the town of Bolivar, and awaits the disposition of relatives in Pittsfield, Mass. Notwithstanding the drenching rain which fell until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the squadron of the Thirteenth Cavalry gave a spectacular and exciting parade and drill on the parade field. It was witnessed by General Harries, his staff, all the infantrymen, and a hundred or more men and women visitors from Harpers Ferry and adjacent territory. This was by far the most thrilling and inspiring performance witnessed in this camp, and a tremendous ovation was given the horsemen as they entered and departed from the field.

Exhibit Daring Horsemanship.

After parade, Major Dickman, commanding the squadron, had his men give an exhibition of daring horsemanship. Passing in review, walking their horses, the cavalrymen increased the gait to a trot and ended the day's performance with a furious gallop which would have put the chariot races in a circus to the blush. Although the cavalrymen got every bit of possible speed out of their horses, and there were many dangerous turns on the field, no casualties resulted. General Harries was so enthusiastic over the review and drill that he took several boxes of cigars to the Cavalry camp shortly before mess and presented them to Major Dickman for distribution among the troopers.

Lighter Side of Camp
And Notes of the Men

First Sergeant Dorcas, of Troop F, pitched his team to victory over the First Regiment, District of Columbia Militia yesterday, the regulars accumulating ten runs to the volunteers' six. Dorcas was also in evidence with the wile, and his stick work in the eighth inning virtually won the game for the team. Villotte and Hunter, who essayed the laborious box work for the volunteers were ineffective and had miserable support.

The cavalrymen have not lost a game this year. Thirteen games have been played, and most of them were with the strongest army teams in the United States. The troops declared yesterday that the militiamen save them the closest run of any team as yet encountered.

Sergeant Lanham, of the Headquarters Staff, who has carried into the Chesapeake and Ohio canal at Point of Rocks, Md., yesterday when he went to meet the District Battery, has suffered no ill effects from his experience. Lanham is never in any danger where horses or water are concerned. In addition to being regarded as the finest rider in camp, Lanham is also a long-distance swimmer of no mean reputation.

Major Neumeier, commissary and quartermaster, and Captain Riggs, of the Staff, who was carried into the General Harries and his staff, report an admirable lack of waste at this encampment. Many large bills have been reduced, and small ones have disappeared entirely since the quartermasters have learned how to draw rations and make them last the proper time for which they were drawn.

Sergeant Charles W. Moore, of Company G, First Regiment, is the oldest first sergeant in the National Guard. He is now rounding out his thirty-fourth year in the service. "It's funny, how things change," remarked Sergeant Moore, after General Harries had warmly shaken his hand. "It wasn't many years ago that I outranked the general, there."

At 8:45 o'clock last night, when many soldiers were thinking of turning in on their bunks, mess call was sounded from the District battery's camp. It was well on toward 10 o'clock before the evening meal was over.

"Why are we camped here?" asked one raw recruit of another, this morning. "I don't know, unless it's to prepare for war," replied the other. "You know, the United States has declared war on Glen Echo, and they want all the soldiers they can get."

The militiamen policed, or cleaned, the camp grounds again yesterday, as they did Monday, starting from the rear of General Harries' tent, and working to the south end of the field, a quarter of a mile away. Several wagons and push cart loads of rubbish were gathered up. The guardsmen presented a humorous aspect as they marched out on the field with rakes on their shoulders, while others carried the scoop of the shovel in their hands and rested the handles on their shoulders. The old song, "White Wings, that Never Grow Weary," does not apply to the militiamen, because they were pretty well worn out before their work was finished yesterday.

Major Dickman, who played a conspicuous part in the suppression of the Boxer uprising, will deliver a lecture in the large tent to the right of headquarters this evening, and from the amount of gossip heard there will be a full house on hand when he begins.

WATER MAINS AND SEWERS ARE ORDERED IMPROVED

The engineering department this morning ordered these improvements and extensions to the water mains and sewers:

One hundred and twenty-five feet of 4-inch water main, alley of square 3055, west from Sixth street, between Fairmont and Girard streets northwest. Sewer along the south side of M street northeast, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, abutting lots 251, 252, 253, 254, and 265 of square 1004.

PYTHIAN GAMES.

The Pythian track and field events arranged for Brightwood Park were postponed yesterday until next Wednesday on account of rain, when the postponed games will be carried out, and the tickets issued will then be honored.

WOOD, HARMON & CO.
ADJUST DIFFERENCES

Differences which arose some time ago among members of the firm of Wood, Harmon & Co. have been adjusted, and the firm will continue its operations in the real estate field. Some misapprehension was caused by the fact that the firm took its differences into court, but the Washington Street Journal has thrown some light on the affair by the explanation that the firm had been so prosperous that a disagreement arose over the division of its profits, and a receiver was asked, in order that matters could be adjusted. This has now been accomplished.

Wood, Harmon & Co. deal extensively in real estate in Brooklyn, and it is said they will continue its operations in the remarkable rise in real estate in that city.

APPOINTED INSPECTOR IN THE SEWER DIVISION

Charles Evans has been appointed inspector in the sewer division, for a probationary period of two months, with compensation at the rate of $2 per diem, said appointment to take effect on and after July 15, 1907.
